SOUTH BROWNSVILLE WOMAN IS FATALLY INJURED HERE

Impaled on Wagon Shaft When Jitney Bus and Wagon Collide

SMALL HOPE FOR RECOVERY

Local Man and South Brownsville Woman go for a Spin With Disastrous Results—Has Corset Rib Forced Through Lung.

Mrs. Lucy Chamberlain, aged 23 years, of South Brownsville, is in the Charleroi-Monessen hosital in a serious condition as the result of a crash between a Jitney bus owned and operated by Samuel Fox, of Speers, and a grocery wagon driven by Lester Wagoner and owned by the Co-operative grocery store. The accident happened on the Charleroi-Speers road about 9:45 o'clock, Monday night.

When the two vehicles collided the shafts of the wagon were swung around and went through the windshield of the automobile. One of the shaft points penetrated the left lung of Mrs. Chamberlain near the heart, driving a steel corset rib forcibly through her lung.

She was immediately rushed to the office of Dr. A. O. Davis, of this place, and a little later was hastened to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital and immediately placed upon the operating table. Very small hopes are entertained for her recovery.

There were four in the Jitney bus besides Mrs. Chamberlain; Blanche Lewellyn, South Brownsville; "Shorty" Urwin, of Charleroi and George Planton of North Charleroi. All were more or less shaken up by the impact but Mrs. Chamberlain was the only occupant seriously injured. Wagoner was thrown from his wagon to the ground but was not seriously injured.

A report from the hospital declares that the injured woman is entirely conscious and talks concerning herself. At first she said she was unmarried but later withdrew this assertion and said she was married, saying that her husband was Paul Chamberlain of South Brownsville. The latter statement roved true, for Chamberlain visited at the hospital during the day. Mrs. Chamberlains father also visited at the hospital.

Negro Highwayman.

Two foreigners, Frank Komoski and Andy Borchuck, of Manown were held up, beaten into insensibility, and robbed while on their way home from Monongahela Monday night. The deed was done by Thomas Dickson, a huge negro, who was later arrested and Tuesday morning brought before Squire Frank McClure of Forward township who held him for court on $1,600 bail. In default of this amount he was sent to the Allegheny county jail.

PRETTY EVENT IS BOSTON WEDDING

Miss Julia E. Settles Becomes the Bride of Floyd Chalfant at Home of Bride

WILL LIVE IN CHARLEROI

Settles, of 24 Burnham street, Somerville, Mass., to Paul Floyd Chalfant of Charleroi, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. In the presence of a number of near relatives and intimate friends of the couple, Rev. William Pettus, rector of St. James' Episcopal church of West Somerville, read the impressive Episcopal service.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor of the Settles' home, the couple and their attendants entering to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march played by Ralph Williamson, organist at St. Mary's Episcopal church, Dorchester. The double ring ceremony was used. During the ceremony Mr. Williamson at the piano played softly. The bride who was given away by her father was charmingly attired in a gown of white lace over satin and carried a boquet of white bridal roses. She wore as her sole ornamentation of jewelry a cameo broach pin that was the gift of the groom. Her maid

EXAMINATIONS ARE HELD IN DIFFERENT SECTIONS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

Over the county there have been three county examinations held for either high school certificates or common school diplomas by committees appointed by County Superintendent L. R. Crumrine. In all there were 779 pupils examined and out of this number 562 received their diplomas or high school entrance certificates.

Superintendent Crumrine, when commenting upon school affairs, declared that the pupils from the districts having the eight and nine month terms were almost always in advance of those having a lesser number of months.

It is stated that many of the failures were ddue to the fact that some teachers had recommended seventh grade pupils for the county examinations and had rushed others so heavily that they were unable to carry the excessive study throughout the winter and be in fit preparation for the examinations in the spring.

Little hope is now entertained for the recovery of Earl Galaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Galaway, of near Bentleyville. Three weeks ago Galaway was removed to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital and it was thought for a while that he would recover but the present developments point very reluctantly toward recovery.

MONONGAHELA MAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE AFTER TELLING SON

While Under Arrest Michael Cairns Consumes Quantity of Poison

IS NOW LIVELY CORPSE

When Charged With Drunkeness and Lodged in Jail Monongahela Man Makes An Attempt to Take His Own Life.

Prompt action on the part of a jail attendant Monday evening probably saved the life of Michael Cairns, a well known miner employed at the Monga mine of the Pittsburg Coal company after he had attempted to end his earthly career with large doses of insect poison taken inwardly. When he was apparently beyond hope of recovery, he was brought back to consciousness and is now a lively corpse.

Charged with drunkenness, Cairns was arrested on the railroad tracks Monday afternoon by a railroad detective. He was placed in jail at Monga without being previously searched. When his son arrived not long after with his lunch, Cairns told him that he would be dead before morning. The son believed that he was intoxicated and did not know what he was saying.

When the orderly arrived at the cell he found Cairns consuming quantities of a powder which investigation showed to be insect poison of the rankest sort. The attendant seized the powder, but his coming was seemingly too late for Cairns fell forward writhing in pain and it was apparent that his soul was about to take its flight from behind the bars.

A physician was summoned and drastic treatment was given the poison eater who responded and now gives every sign of complete recovery.

Notice to the Public.

Since we have published our new price list some people are under the impression that it is our purpose to make our customers pay more than necessary.

This is not the case and to prove it we desire to place th following facts before the people:

For the past three or four years a general increase in wages has been granted to all trades, plumbers, carpenters, blacksmiths, street car men, miners, etc., to meet the increased cost of living.

The teamsters of this town have not received any advance in wages but have been compelled to meet a steady increase on expenses as for instance, shoeing horses three years ago cost $1.40 while we pay $2.00 now. Hay, oates, straw have taken a raise from 50 to 100 per cent in the same time. The price of harness, wagons, horses and repairs have all been advanced.

In all fairness are we not entitled to a raise in our prices to meet these new conditions? We ask your fair consideration of the above facts.

Respectfully submitted for the Master Teamsters Association.

"CIVILIZED" WAR

Not satisfied with the celerity attaching to the death dealt out by the most modern and most horrible engines of war, the European belligerents are employing means to their "civilized" war which would drive the blush of shame to the cheeks of savages. In this matter both side is blameless, each doing all that it knows how, ability to execute the fiendish desires being the only limit, says the Uniontown Herald. With the horrible drama in full view it's no wonder that the neutral world eagerly listens to peace rumors, that a movement for peace should receive the approval of the Vatican and that the belligerents themselves should anxiously look forward to the day when they can end the horror.

Enos Curtin, an American chemist who has been serving with a French ambulance corps in Lorraine has just returned to the United States. He says the Germans have invented a new gas more horribly fatal than any yet used. This gas, he says, is fatal in nearly every case, the victims dying flapping their arms like the wings of a decapitated fowl and with hysterical laughter on their lips. He asserts that there are three kinds of gas being used. There are antidotes for the first two, but the third can only be combatted with pure oxygen, which is difficult to get and even then not always effective.

"When the laughing gas is inhaled," he says, "the victim falls to the ground and his body becomes rigid except from the elbows to the finger tips. You can imagine what it is to see rows of them lie, flapping their arms like chickens and dying with insane laughter on their lips."

Better authenticated is the claim put forth by the German war office that the French are using liquid fire. The German trenches near Baugois were sprayed with this fiery fluid. The attack was unexpected and many of the soldiers in the forward trenches were burned to death before they could retreat. Allegations were made some time ago by the Allies that the Germans were using similar burning fluids which were thrown into the trenches in such a way that the victims had no chance for escape from the most painful death.

If even a tithe of these stories are true what becomes of the myth that there is such a thing as civilized warfare?

PICNIC DRINKING WATER

The picnic season has begun. Every alluring spot for miles around in the vicinity of the towns and cities will be the Mecca for pleasure seekers from now until the frost comes.

Almost everybody attends a picnic sometime during the season. Now that the automobile has made even the remote districts readily accessible for city dwellers, the number of urban residents who seek an occasional days relaxation in the country, has tremendously increased, says Samuel G. Dixon.

Nobody thinks of going on a picnic without taking a generous supply of food but few people are far sighted enough to carry their drinking water. Some spring, brook, or farmer's well they feel, will be sure to supply this essential. As a result of this indiscriminate dependence upon unfamiliar sources of water supply, there are hundreds of pleasure seekers who contract typhoid fafever every season.

That period of the year when typhoid fever is always most prevalent is that at the end and immediately following the vacation season. While this is not alone the result of picnics they unquestionably play an important part in this annual toll of illness and death.

It is not a difficult matter if one is taking an auto trip to carry a supply of drinking water from a source that is known to be uncontaminated. Moderate priced vacuum bottles or other forms of containers can be secured which will keep the water cool.

If the water supply with which you are unfamiliar must be used boiling the water for twenty minutes will make it safe. It does mean, however, that the picnic drinks will always pale ones. Many a sparkling, crystal clear, roadside spring is open to polution and no matter how attractive the little streamlet which babbles along under the overhanging trees may appear, one must needs follow it to its source to be certain that it is free from contamination. So for safety's sake carry your own drinking water in the picnic basket.

PRETTY EVENT

of honor was her sister, Miss Dell Settles, who wore a gown of pink crepe meteor, and who carried a bouquet of pink roses. Harvey E. Settles a brother of the bride was the groom's best man.

The home was prettily decorated for the event, the prevailing colors being pink and white. Palms were used effectively in the decorations.

Following the congratulations and best wishes a brief reception was tendered and a buffet luncheon was served. Then late in the afternoon the couple hied themselves away on their honeymoon trip which they will spend in the Hudson valley and other points of interest in New York state. They will be gone ten days or two weeks and then will come directly to Charleroi to take up their abode at 214 Washington avenue, where they will be "at home" to their friends after August 1.

The bride is prominent in musical circles of Boston. For four years she studied under John Orth a noted composer and teacher and one-time pupil of the famous Liszt. Under him she completed a teacher's course in piano. She also took up the study of organ and served as substitute organist at St. Mary's Episcopal church in Dorchester of which her teacher, Ralph Williamson is organist. She has been a popular teacher of piano in Somerville and other Boston suburbs, conducting an eminently successful class.

The groom is the son of Mrs. E. M. Chalfant of Charleroi and is a newspaper man who has been employed by the Mail for the last nine years. He is at present the city editor of the Mail.

Excellent Facilities.

To acquaint manufacturing and industrial interests of the country with the advantages offered by a logical location for new industries, the freight traffic department of the Pennsylvania railroad has prepared a folder, containing a map of the Pennsylvania railroad lines east of Pittsburg, Erie and Buffalo, and giving pertinent reasons, describing the facilities and advantages.

Ten thousand copies of this folder have been furnished the representative of the Pennsylvania system at the Panama-Pacific International exposition for distribution through that agency, and other copies are being distributed by the freight traffic department in the territory described.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for their sympathy and for the lovely floral tributes sent during our bereavement, the death of our beloved wife and mother.

SCENES OF OLD WESTERN LIFE DEPICTED IN WILD WEST SHOW SOON TO COME

Tomorrow will be a strenuous day on the 101 Ranch Wild West Show grounds. The strenuousness will start at an early hour, for Miller Bros. & Arlington's 101 Ranch Wild West show, with the cowboy champion of the world, big Jess Willard, and its noted congress of cowpunchers cowgirls, Indians, Mexicans, Cosacks and other lively and more or less reckless entertainers will be here. The show is scheduled to reach the city shortly before the breakfast hour and after that it will be a case of systematic and organized hustle until at midnight the big show "folds its tents like the Arabs and as silently steals away" to the next city, which in this particular instance happens to be Uniontown.

Naturally, there will be a crowd on hand in the Pennsylvania railroad yards to see the show come rolling into town, to watch the unloading of the cars, to catch glimpses of the fancifully-attired Wild West people and incidentally, to rubber for a first view of the cowboy champion, who travels in his own private car with his wife and a company of well-known sparrers.

This early morning visit to the railroad yards is always an incident of the coming of a big show and this interest does not end with the unloading of the cars. When the Wild West people, who always ride their own horses to the grounds, start for the Wild West camp, the crowd inevitably follows and they are well repaid for the scenes incident to the erection of the tents are full of interest and color. The mammoth arena, the horse tents, the cook and dining pavilions, where the hundreds of Wild West people are fed; the Indian villages—all have their peculiar attraction o fthe crowd. The extraordinary facility with which the tents are erected and the erstwhile deserted lot transformed into a veritable city of canvas never fails to excite surprise and comment.

The first event of 101 Ranch and Willard day will be the parade which will leave the grounds at 10:30 and pass over the usual route. A frontier procession of characteristic novelty is promised.

The inaugural performance takes place at 2:13 and the final one at 8:15. Each will be complete in every way. Jess Willard, the new champion is announced to positively appear at both performances, first in his original role as a cowboy and finally in ring costume, when he will illustrate with a sparring partner just how he won the championship belt. In addition to Willard there will be a great company of expert Wild West people, who will give what is declared to be the liveliest exhibition of its kind ever given in a frontier arena. Roping, broncho-busting, crack shooting, a stage coach hold-up, an Indian attack on a pioneers camp, Indian war dances and other incidental and exhilarating numbers are announced. Seats all day at Piper's Pharmacy.

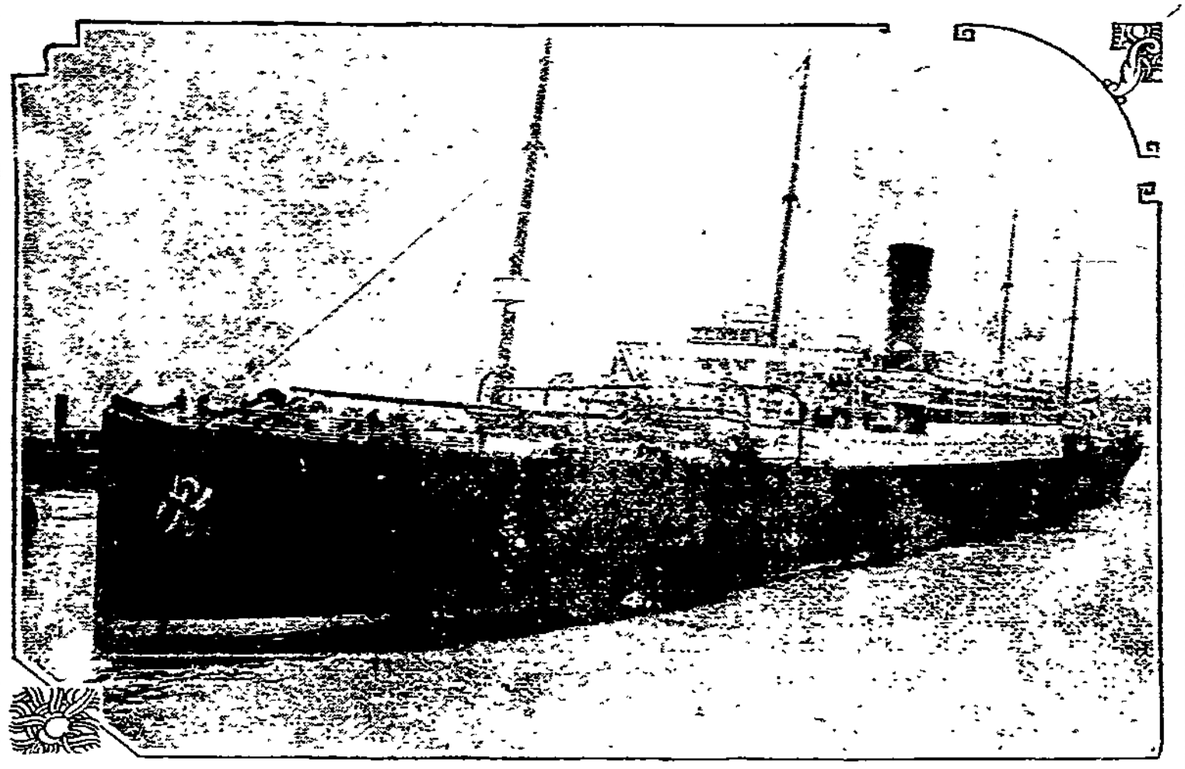
WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA BELGIAN RELIEF SHIP



This city and more than 100 other cities and towns within a radius of 150 miles of Pittsburgh will contribute to the cargo of this great ship which has been chartered by the Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania Committee for Relief in Belgium. It will sail from New York early next month and will carry more than a quarter of a million dollars' worth of flour donated by the generous people of western Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh and its suburbs have raised $157,000 toward this fund. Although the campaign has not started in many of the outside cities and towns, these communities already have reported more than $30,000, and every mail brings large donations in addition. Chairman William Flinn of the general committee is warm in his praise of the patriotic service of the out-of-town organizations. While Pittsburghers were in the midst of their campaign last week he said that the greatest encouragement came from the optimistic reports received from "up state."

Many of the outlying districts have made good their pledges of flour. Others are carrying out the enterprise with spirit.

The pledges of western Pennsylvania cities follow:

When You Can't Smoke

that's the time to chew FIVE BROTHERS. When you can smoke—that's the time to choose FIVE BROTHERS.

This pure Southern Kentucky tobacco is the great favorite with men of vigor. It is full-bodied and satisfying. It gets its pleasant richness from the natural aging we give it for three to five years. And that is what keeps its quality up, always the same, no matter what the year's crop may be.

FIVE BROTHERS

Pipe Smoking Tobacco

has always given prime pleasure to manly men. A FIVE BROTHERS man never switches to another brand; he knows he's losing time and pleasure on a needless experiment. Many brands come and go into the discard—while FIVE BROTHERS holds old friends and makes new ones every day.

There's a snappy taste to FIVE BROTHERS that policemen and other big fellows like. It's got that man-size quality about it; not one of those insipid, next-to-nothing tobaccos—but the big king-brand for the he-men on the force.

A week's trial will make you a permanent user of FIVE BROTHERS—go to it today.

FIVE BROTHERS is sold everywhere.

SONGBIRDS OF GREAT VALUE

Rarest Varieties Command Large Sums When They Are Offered for Sale to Fanciers.

The recent international bird show has provided some astonishing facts and figures regarding the value of songbirds. There are nearly one hundred classes of canaries. That there can be Norwich or Lancashire, Border or Yorkshire variegated, lizard, unlighted, clear cross bred, created, self or foul contests very little to the average mind but leaves one marveling at the variety of chirping little creatures whose feathers are every conceivable shade of yellow.

One marvels also at the variety of birds that could be kept as pets. Finches linnets redpoles, tomtits, robins, wrens stonechats, babblers and long tailed short tailed, wag tailed and crested varieties of all of them in every size from the minute humming bird to the plump scarlet cockatoo, all vie for that popularity which up to the present has been the monopoly of the canary.

And these little birds are all quite cheap. A few dollars will buy most of them, but on the other hand $2,500 would be asked for a gorgeous crimson bird of paradise, or $5,000 for the canary-bullfinch "White Rose," the most expensive songbird in the world.

FOEMEN MADE MANY VISITS

Aged French Couple Kept Track of Number of Times Germans Had Been in Village.

Travelers in France just now have to stay at all sorts of queer places for the night. A correspondent writes to say that he was forced to stop for the night at a little village near Reims. "An old Frenchman and his wife, both over eighty years of age, gave me a room in the house," he writes.

"Before going to bed the old people talked about the war. They had been living together in this same house during the Franco-German war and, said the old man, 'it does not seem five minutes ago. While we have been living here, he went on 'the German soldiers during the two wars have been billeted in this house no fewer than twenty-two times. During this war they have been backwards and forwards on three or four occasions.'

"These old French people—the woman looked very sweet in her snow-white cap—actually kept a score of the number of times the Germans had been through the village in war times. 'Do you think they have now gone for good?' asked the old man. 'Shall I ever have to make another mark on the score?'"

Bees to Fight Troops.

In the bush fighting in East Africa the Germans and their black troops placed hives of wild bees, partially stupefied by smoke, under lids on each side of narrow tracks along which our troops must advance. Wires or cords lifted the lids when touched by the advancing troops, and swarms of infuriated bees, recovered from their temporary stupor, were let loose on the attackers. The failure of the attack at certain points is said to have been due as much to this onslaught of the "little people" as to the German rifles and machine-guns, many men being so horribly stung on the face or hands as to be temporarily blinded or rendered incapable of holding their weapons. Over one hundred stings are said to have been extracted from one of the men of the Royal North Lancashires.—London Mail.

Gun Has No Recoil.

An officer of the United States navy has invented a gun that fires a six-pound projectile without recoil. This gun, because of the absence of recoil, is well adapted to use on aeroplanes or dirigibles. The gun has both ends open to the atmosphere. The shell has the projectile fitted into one end, and in the other end is a mass of birdshot. The shot is of sufficient weight to furnish the required reaction when the projectile is discharged from the other end of the gun. When the gun is fired the projectile is thrown from the muzzle at a high velocity while the shot is discharged from the breech at low velocity.

Criticizes Hospitals.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has given much time and money to the question of the selling of drugs and the treatment of those who become victims, which the city of New York takes care. She now declared the manner in which the city of New York takes care of the drug "fiends" a hideous farce. After ten days the victims are sent out of the hospitals "cured," and she says they leave shattered in nerve and unable to fight against the drug. Katharine Bement Davis, commissioner of charities in New York, says that between 35 and 50 per cent of all the criminals are drug fiends.

SOOTHED THE CRYING CHILD

Escaping Convict Proved to Mother That She Need Have No Fear in His Presence.

Tenderly patting a young and crying baby which he had picked up from its crib, escaped convict Peter Tosti succeeded in convincing Mrs. Charles Kelley of San Rafie, Cal., after he had gained entrance to her home that he would not harm her and her two children.

Tosti told Mrs. Kelley that all he wanted was something to eat and a change of wearing apparel for his prison stripes.

Mrs. Kelley was awakened by the crying of her two babies who had been disturbed by the convict. As she awoke she saw Tosti pick up the younger one and soothingly began to rock it. He kept this up until the child fell asleep. Noticing that Mrs. Kelley was awake, Tosti addressed her, saying:

"Don't be afraid. I am fond of children and I would not harm two like these—or their mother."

After this he kept up a running fire of conversation and as soon as he had foraged in the kitchen for some victuals he left, apologizing for his intrusion. With Tosti went Mrs. Kelley's husband's overcoat.

Tosti had served only two years of a ten-year sentence for grand larceny committed in Merced county when he escaped from San Quentin.

HAS TO DRAW ON ENGLAND

France Feeling the Scarcity of Coal Consequent on the German Control of the Mines.

France is now compelled to call on England for coal, which was formerly mined in the north of France. Practically all the mines in that district have either been destroyed by the German artillery or are being operated by Germans. At Lievin and Courrieres the German army is carrying on extensive mining operations and producing great quantities of coal, which are being shipped into Belgium for the use of the German military forces.

France is no longer able to draw coal from Mons and Charleroi, which formerly supplied large quantities for exportation. Consequently, the residents of northern France are largely dependent upon English mines for coal, which has become very scarce.

Frequently towns and villages near the fighting lines are entirely without coal for a week. This works great hardship on hospitals, sadly in need of the fuel for hundreds of thousands of wounded and the sick soldiers of the allies who are being cared for in French towns.

Hospital Barges.

Northern France is rich in waterways, and hospital barges are already running between Paris and the battle-front, under the auspices of the Union des Femmes de France. The hold is enameled white and fitted with 40 beds, and at the end is the nurse's retiring-room. The barge-master's cabin is converted into a living-room for two surgeons. There is an operating-room, too, with washing gear, an electric plant, and a perfect system of heating. To convert a Seine barge into a gondola of this kind costs a bare $500, and the results are beyond praise—especially to fracture cases, to whom the jolting road is agony.

The wounded are hoisted in by means of small cranes, and the barge is then towed by steam or motor yachts lent by wealthy persons, who are more than glad not only to lend their boats free of charge, but to navigate them in person, thus sharing in the work of mercy.

Dyeing War Horses.

Ever since the war broke out experiments have been made with a view to dyeing the coats of white horses, but simple as it may seem to the uninitiated a satisfactory result has not yet been obtained. Numerous inventors came forward with vaunted dyes, but after the preliminary tests only one liquid seemed to resist the rain satisfactorily. A battery of 24 white horses was consequently treated, and sent out on duty in all weathers. When they returned after a week or ten days all the beasts were of a beautiful bottle green, and are expected to retain that hue for some time to come.

Automatic Post Office in Paris.

The first of the automatic post offices which are shortly to be installed at different points in Paris is already working in the great waiting room of the Gare St. Lazare. It is very much of the type of the ordinary automatic machine, but distributes, instead of chocolates and matches, stamps of the required denomination, postal cards and letter cards. The machine takes only French money, but conscientiously returns such coins as it does not accept as current. At each side of the machine are ledges on which the client can scribble his correspondence, which he can then place in the letter box.

Claims Important Discoveries.

A Savannah, Ga., man has claimed to have discovered a chemical which when applied to growing cotton turns it jet black. He also claims to be able to grow roses of a pure velvet black and he believes his discovery will revolutionize the cultivation of plants generally.

The Idea.

"How is it, my man, that you can afford to give up working now?"

"Sure, sir, I'm going to be married."

HEARD AT DELIVERY DESK

Librarian Is Frequently the Recipient of Confidences That Are Distinctly of Private Nature.

"My husband's been sick, and he ain't well enough yet to do more'n lie on the sofa and read," a brisk matron explained lately to the librarian of a small city. "He likes travel books best. He's finished up the north pole and the south pole, now I'd like to take him something about the discovery of the equator."

Although the librarian was unable to comply with the request precisely in the way the matron expected, at least she had no difficulty in understanding what was wanted. Sometimes much more reasonable inquiries are so worded as to test to the utmost the ingenuity and imagination of the waiting but bewildered provider of literature. A member of the staff of the St. Louis public library records a few examples.

"The Sphinx and Pyrenees," was readily rectified to the "Sphinx and Pyramids;" the description of a painting by "Remembrance" was, after a little thought, produced—although the artist was Rembrandt; a natural history book on "Knowing, Inveterate and Cavernous Animals" was interpreted satisfactorily as one upon animals that are gnawing, invertebrate or carnivorous. Even the boy who demanded a thrilling tale entitled, "Fighting With the Hi-Hos" was not disappointed. He received "Riflemen of the Ohio."

With the frequenters of the children's room, who so often seek advice and assistance, the friendly librarian is frequently on confidential terms—so much so that unexpected domestic revelations are occasionally made. Joe, a constant borrower, inquired anxiously one Saturday:

"Missus, how much will I have to pay if I keep my book until Monday?"

"Your book is due today," he was told, "but you have an hour's time before the library closes. Why don't you go home and get it?"

"Can't," said Joe.

"Why can't you?" persisted the attendant.

"'Cause," said Joe, "I'll get a bath if I do."—Youth's Companion.

WHEN SUN "DRAWS WATER"

Some Erroneous Ideas That Seem to Have Taken a Firm Hold on the People's Imagination.

When the sun is to the east or west of us on a cloudy or hazy day, beams are often seen radiating from it toward the horizon; then many people say the sun is "drawing water." They actually believe that the lines of light and shadow appearing to converge in the sun are great shafts of water and the vapor that the sun is drawing up into the air to be precipitated later on the earth as rain or snow. These shafts as a matter of fact are generally indicative of coming rainy weather, but they cannot be counted on as infallible signs.

The idea that the sun is "drawing water," however, is entirely erroneous, for the lines seen are the result of the passage of light through openings in clouds already formed. The lines that appear dark are shadows of clouds while the light lines are rays from the sun made visible in the air by the presence therein of dust or watery vapor, just as the dust in the air of a room makes visible the light that enters it through small apertures.—The Pathfinder.

Making It Emphatic.

She sailed into the telegraph office and rapped on the counter. As the clerk came forward to meet her he remembered that she had been there about ten minutes before. He wondered what she wanted this time.

"Oh," she said, "let me have that telegram I wrote just now; I forgot something very important. I wanted to underscore 'perfectly lovely' in acknowledging the receipt of that bracelet. Will it cost anything extra?"

"No, ma'am," said the clerk, as he handed her the message.

The young lady drew two heavy lines beneath the words, and said:

"It's awfully good of you to let me do that. It will please Arthur ever so much."—Youth's Companion.

Crowding In.

How many fares may be crowded into a jitney at one time? The night is dark and stormy. It is a long way home. Six little playmates, three young men and three young women are waiting on a corner to catch the first jitney home. Along breezes a five-passenger car. One of the five seats is occupied by the driver. Now we leave it to you, gentle reader. Is the party to be split up? Are three to stand there in the downpour until the next jitney happens along, or are the young men to forget their own comfort for the nonce and hold the storm-bound young women on their knees? It is opportunities like this that keep Cupid busy.—Jane Dixon, in New York Sun.

The Humble Toiler.

"You must put your shoulder to the wheel in this campaign," said the alert manager.

"I understand that," said the obscure but willing worker. "But you want to let me know when you're going to change your mind about going ahead. The last time I put my shoulder to the wheel the band wagon suddenly backed up and over me."—Washington Star.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1914) was the following:

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pre-tuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost, both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis . . .

"Forced feeding of tuberculosis patients and the enormous amount of eggs and milk once given such patients are not now considered advisable by a large number of physicians who are specializing in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to a loss of lime from the system, the success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of this disease may be due, in part, to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged users of Eckman's Alterative to attend strictly to matters of food.

In addition to rest and proper diet, some effective remedial agent seems to be needed, and in numerous cases of apparent recovery from tuberculosis and kindred throat and bronchial affections Eckman's Alterative has supplied this need.

It does not contain opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. Your druggist has it or will order it, or you can get it from us direct.
